

Innovating for Sustainability

at the Annual Co-operative Leaders' Conference 2017

Photo credit: SNCF

Held in Taipei, the Annual Co-operative Leaders' Conference (ACLC) 2017 saw local co-operators coming together to learn how innovation can help to grow their businesses.

Representatives from a few co-operatives and social enterprises were invited as speakers to share inspiring stories about their businesses and how they turned challenges into opportunities.

One such speaker was Sean Tan, Secretary of the AUPE Multi-purpose Co-operative (MPC), who talked about the many innovative changes the credit co-operative adopted

Sean Tan sharing the AUPE MPC story to an enthusiastic audience
Photo credit: SNCF

over the years. These changes brought MPC to where it is today: a 52-year-old co-op with more than 17,000 members and assets worth millions.

The interactive breakout sessions at the conference gave participants an opportunity to collaborate with one another, with aims of strengthening and growing the co-operatives and the co-operative movement.

Ma Wei Cheng, Vice-Chairman, MPC, facilitating a breakout session
Photo credit: SNCF

More about ACLC 2017:

Organised by the Singapore National Co-operative Federation (SNCF), ACLC 2017 aims to help co-operatives build relationships and generate ideas for developing and implementing innovative strategies to maintain sustainability.

AUPE MPC officials & staff photographed with Kwek Kok Kwong, Chairman of SNCF, and Dolly Goh, CEO of SNCF
Photo credit: SNCF